To the FDA:

I write to urge you to forbid the use of human-used antibiotics on farm animals, used to speed the animals' growth or counteract the effects of their crowded living conditions and poor hygiene. Clearly animals need to live in more humane and sanitary conditions, and be allowed to grow at their own rate. The overuse of antibiotics has become a health hazard for humans and steps must be taken to minimize all but the most medically pertinent of its uses for human beings.

Thank you for your good work in protecting our national health.

Sincerely,
